Analytical Cume
November 11, 2005

The Cassini spacecraft has been in orbit about Saturn for just over a year. Soon after orbit insertion, it released a lander that successfully landed on Titan and transmitted for over an hour. The lander sent observations from the surface that seemed to show rivers and eroded rocks.

With your knowledge of chemistry and chemical instrumentation, describe the predict of the surface and atmosphere of Titan and the atmosphere of Saturn, and an experimental strategy for confirming your predictions.